Weather: A rather atypical spring with cool temperatures and northerly winds during the mid-May period when we would expect a major movement of neo-tropical migrants through this area. Unusually warm temperatures in late April and early May did result in some numbers of early arrivals and then we had stragglers coming through in late May to the end of the reporting period. This period of early warm temperatures seemed to cause the early departure of most waterfowl with very few remaining past mid-May. Water levels in the Great Lakes continued to rise back to historically normal levels changing the habits and locations of the migrating shorebirds.

Summary: While a number of specialties and rarities were observed, we were somewhat short of the record number of species observed during this period in 2004. The number of people submitting reports directly decreased slightly but the numbers of people using the area birding websites appears to be increasing, thus raising the question as to the most efficient and effective way to gather and submit this data.

Several Greater White-fronted Goose were spotted in the southern parts of the area as were several Ross's Goose. A Snow Goose and a Trumpeter Swan remained at SNWR well into May possibly enjoying our cool weather. Long-tailed Ducks remained in Lake Huron at Tawas Point as of the end of May. White Pelicans repeated their invasion of last year with 10 birds originally showing up at SNWR and then apparently spreading to the Bay City and Nayanquing Pt. with one bird remaining a SNWR through May 18.

Wading birds were well represented with Snowy Egret, Little Blue and Tri-colored Herons and Cattle Egrets all being reported. Piping Plovers made their appearance at Tawas Point again this year but no confirmed nesting. A large number of Whimbrels were observed at Tawas Point, and a Marbled Godwit was also there on 5/23. Large numbers of shorebirds passed through SNWR with 544 Pectoral Sandpipers, 602 Dunlin and 119 Wilson's Snipe showing up during the period.

One Thayer's Gull was found at Harbor Beach in Huron County and a Lesser Black-backed Gull again made an appearance at BCSRA. A White-winged Dove found at Tawas Point by Gary Nelkie was unexpected. Warbler numbers were down this Spring as they seemed to trickle through. A Kirtland's on May 17 at Tawas Pt., a Cerulean at two locations and a Connecticut at two locations were the only "special warblers" reported. Nelkie reports possible nesting of Clay-colored Sparrows at Tawas Pt. and the continued presence of a singing Lark Sparrow there raises the question of breeding in Michigan. There was a report of a Smith's Longspur at Tawas Pt.

Lastly, Glen and Ellen Peterson had some excitement as a Eurasian Siskin showed up at their feeders in Bay County.

Thanks to all who contributed to this report.

G. Nelkie writes: "The Piping Plover sightings that I have listed have not been previously reported to the birding community. This was done per the wishes of the USFWS to avoid pressuring the species. Mark Hubinger encountered an additional Piping Plover at Tawas Point and did post it on the Saginaw Bay website. I told Mark that his sighting was of a plover from the Great Plains population - a very rare visitor to the Great Lakes, identified by the leg band, a white "flag" on right leg.

G. Nelkie writes: "I listed the date of the first sighting and the last date that I saw the bird. (I stopped my daily visits to Tawas Point on May 24th.) We would occasionally see a Lark Sparrow at a specific location along the point. I shared this information with Kevin Thomas, who sat at that location and heard the Lark Sparrow singing. As a result of the sightings at that one consistent location, and the singing bird, there is some speculation that the Lark Sparrow was on territory. Breeding in Michigan?"
